RUTH ELDER, courageous young Florida girl, is safe on a ship that picked her out of the ocean.
Ruth's mother, who prayed constantly while her daughter was flying and put the family Bible in the airship, weeps for joy. Other mothers are weeping with her.
The Nation will hope that Ruth Elder and other girls will stay on the ground hereafter, or do their flying over land, and let men like Lindbergh, if there are any like him, do the ocean flying.
Columbus's job was to get a man and so is the job of ocean flying. The Greek philosopher, jumping into the mouth of a volcano to attract attention, did not do so, but foolish.
It is folly in anybody but a lion tamer to enter the lion's den.

Peking, where sleek mandarins live in silk gowns, shivers at news of 15,000 Mongolian horsemen approaching the capital.
From Peking, west through Russia, Germany, down to the Persian Gulf, populations have learned to fear the men with slanting eyes that murdered as they came.
Those Mongolian and Tartars of whom Jenghis Khan and Attila made conquering armies, are no longer dangerous to the civilized races, that can easily dispose of them with poison gases and bombs from the air. AS LONG AS THEY RIDE TO WAR ON SHAGGY PONIES. But what if the airplanes spread through the world as Ford's cars spread, and Mongols and Tartars come traveling through the clouds? On that day prosperous Americans in their counting rooms will shiver, with good reason, as the soft mandarin shivers now in Peking. Dollars won't protect them.

Professor Collins of Smithson Institution says Eskimos leave their wives for five months, each year, to make a good catch of seals certain.
At the end of the five months the husbands of all seals captured during the year are thrown into the water to please the seal tribe.
Separating from women for a part of each year is often the rule in many savage tribes. The Red Indians said little attention to their wives except in Spring. This gave the husbands the rest of the year to look after the children, and this was probably a relief.
If the plan were tried in this country, making the husband's absence eleven months, instead of five, the number of divorces might diminish. Dull minds are easily bored.

King Albert of Belgium, estimable gentleman, but, in the saying of the French, one who "did not invent gunpowder," exclaimed "only a girl" when he heard that his grandchild wanted a boy.

GIRL FLIER TELLS OF BATTLE IN STORM

The New York Daily Mirror today publishes the following exclusive dispatch signed by Ruth Elder and George Haldeman in which Miss Elder says she never expected to get out of the storm area alive. The dispatch follows:

S. S. Barendrecht (By Radio).—Beautiful trip Tuesday night and Wednesday all day. Went into bad area at 12,000 feet. Hit terrible storm 9 last night. Fought it all night; worst I have ever seen and never expected to get out alive.

After making new course this morning oil pressure went down to zero. Forced to land alongside Barendrecht. American Girl exploded and burnt up. Nothing saved.

Was in air exactly thirty-five hours to here. Can take passenger boat to Paris if advisable. This tanker headed for Galveston, Tex. Advise us care this boat.

Alford S. S. Barendrecht, Bound for the Azores, Oct. 14 (I.N.S.).—The rescue of Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman was effected after these two daring fliers had battled for hours against a terrific storm in the skies.

The American Girl had excellent flying during Tuesday night and, Miss Elder states very frankly that Wednesday, but on Wednesday night both were worried for fear they hit a storm area which caused both to be unable to bring their plane to exert their utmost energies to plane through the storm.

WICKFORD, EATON FIRST IN HUB-R. I. AIR RACE

Lieutenant Ralph Wickford of Concord and William Eaton, Jr., of Brookline finished first today in the Boston Airport to Fitchburg Flying Field (Providence) air race for "best average cruising time."
The winner, however, was not to be decided until the "best cruising time" picked by the judges and sealed in an envelope previous to the Boston takeoff was unsealed up with the elapsed times of the fliers.
Wickford and Eaton were favored by an absolute handicap when they hoped off at Boston, at 11:19 in a "Traveler" ship. They were down at 11:31 a. m.
Based down on the Providence field were two Massachusetts Nationals.

RUTH ELDER BATTLED FOR LIFE IN SKY RIDE THROUGH GALES

SEA FLEERS IN TERROR OF STORM

Yesterday morning the two fliers, seeking to get out of the storm area, veered southward and were headed toward the coast of Spain when their oil line failed.

With their gauges showing a failure in oil supply and their engine halting rapidly, Miss Elder and Haldeman knew they could not keep the ship in the air long and as soon as they sighted the Barentrecht they came down.

The landing of the seaplane upon the sea by the two fliers was executed safely and was a fine bit of aerial maneuvering, but when attempts were made to salvage the seaplane, it exploded and burned up. It is believed that the overboarded seaplane caused the explosion.

Miss Elder and Haldeman came down after they had been in the air for 24 hours and had flown nearly 2,000 miles, according to the best calculations.

25 MILES OFF AZORES

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The attention of two continents today was centered upon a little seaplane which was plunging through the troughs of the Atlantic Ocean towards the Azores.

On that steamer were Miss Ruth Elder, flying aviator, and her co-pilot, Captain George Haldeman, intentionally saved from death in the American Old, was forced down in a flight that was to have terminated at Paris.

The seaplane, the Barentrecht, was expected to reach the Azores tomorrow.

Meanwhile today efforts were being made to get in touch with the small seaplane by radio and by wireless and vessels were rushing out to meet her in order to supplement that message announcement yesterday that the fliers had been rescued and the plane burned.

The Barentrecht carries only a small wireless and was unable to get in touch with shore stations. The news had to be relayed by other vessels.

The Barentrecht was sailing a course to Bagin, France, but after picking up Miss Elder and Haldeman changed her course towards the Azores.

When it fell, the American Girl was about 150 miles northeast of the Azores. A broken oil line prevented it from being able to proceed 8,000 miles across the Atlantic.

Crowds waiting at Le Bourget field to greet the winning aviator who was going to show Paris what the American girl was, had about as much to hope for as the American Girl.

A message signed by Miss Elder, stating, "Both Haldeman and I okay," was supplemented by a radio from the ship's master, as follows:

"Barentrecht saved crew of flying engine NX 134 from New York to Paris. Both well. Engine destroyed by fire while sailing. Trying to land south at Azores. Position 23° 44' North, 13° 38' West."

This was the first word from the fliers after a forbidding silence of thirty-eight hours.

VENICE BEAUTY FLYING OCEAN IS IN HORTA

Horta, Island of Fayal, Azores, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Another woman aspirant to transatlantic honors, Lilli Dittus, Viennese actress, arrived here today as a passenger aboard the Junkers plane D-1239, which left Lisbon this morning en route to the United States by way of these islands.

The actress, who hopes to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, stood the ninety-mile hop to day well, as did her four German companions, Frederick Loebe, Ralph Burke, Rudolph Pittner and Karel Lowe, who comprises the crew.

The D-1239 averaged about ninety miles an hour on the trip.

Wilhelmshaven, Germany, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The Hinkel hydroplane D-1235, which is on a flight to the United States by way of the Azores, arrived in Amsterdam today.

Dakar, Senegal, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Dieudonne Dier and Lieutenant Joseph Le Bre, French aviators, hopped off at 6:23 a. m. today, on the transatlantic section of their flight from Paris to Buenos Aires. Their immediate destination is Fort Natal, Brazil, a distance of about 2,000 miles.

MAJOR FAVORS $25,000 A YEAR FOR AIRPORT

Mayor Nichols will soon call a conference of Boston business leaders to determine how far the city should go at this time in improving the airport, he told the special State commission on aviation at the State House today.

The mayor declared that he personally favors a yearly appropriation of about $25,000 by the city and believes Boston would assume ownership of the airport if the proper authority could be obtained from the Legislature.

If assured of the co-operation of business interests, he intends to take steps to spend the money necessary to improve the field. The conference is for the purpose of ascertaining just what uses can be made of the airport for commercial purposes.

"I believe thoroughly in the future of the Boston Airport," he told the commission, which met behind closed doors, the mayor's statement given Secretary.

Women Put Ruth Elder Below Good Typist

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Ruth Elder may be a heroine to millions today but to some American women she was "very foolish" to risk her life in the transatlantic flight and of "much less service to humanity than a good typist."

While conceding the courage of the pretty Florida aviator, Dr. Katherine E. Davis, sociologist, called her adventure "a mistaken thing for a young girl to do."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, civic leader, criticized the needless risk involved, and Winifred Backville Storer, founder of the League for Forfeiting Genius, expressed her preference for good typists to Ruth Elder and Gertrude Ederies.

Dr. Davis said "the only time anyone should undertake a thing that jeopardizes the happiness of dear ones is when he or she has a definite chance of accomplishing something."

There is no woman alive today that I know of equipped as to physical make-up and past training and experience for such a flight."

Mrs. Storer voiced her opposition

RUTH IS 'REAL HEROINE,' SAYS MRS. HALDEMAN

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Rejoicing approaching exaltation and extending from New York to Florida and the Canal Zone marked receipt of the news of the rescue as was off the Azores of Ruth Elder, Lakeland, Fla. aviator, and her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, in their crippled monoplane, the American Girl.

"Oh," exclaimed Mrs. Haldeman, "I was thrilled by the news of her safety. If there were only golden clouds I'd be walking on them!" Mrs. Haldeman pressed Miss Elder as the heroine of the adventure.

"You know, my husband is just the opposite. Miss Elder is the important person."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Haldeman was "thrilled" by the news of her husband's safety, and was "too happy to speak."

H. H. Cornish, of Lakeland, Fla., and H. E. Cornell, of Wheeling, Va., who were with Mrs. Haldeman in a New York hotel after the rescue, became known, were in a condition of high spirits.

"We wanted to put the United States flag on the map again in aviation," Cornell explained, "and we thought it would be fine to have a good-looking American girl fly over in her own machine. It was all most ideal," he beamed.

At Aniston, Ala., Miss Elder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. O. D., the latter a frail woman of advanced age—said their joy was "unbounded." A radiogram from Ruth late yesterday confirmed their cause for rejoicing after a long and prayerful wait.

"I did my best to feel all right about it," Miss Elder's father said, "but about 6 o'clock in the morning I told my wife that I thought our daughter was lost."

In Lakeland George Haldeman, Jr., four, continued without much concern playing with his toy airplane, unmindful of his father's good fortune. J. J. Haldeman, the pilot's father, not only expressed private and personal gratitude for his son's safety but was a speaker at an official celebration.

Still further south, in the Canal Zone, Lyle Womack, accessories salesman? husband of the aviator, was haggard from an all-night vigil when Ruth's cable informed him of her rescue. Womack replied: "With love, bravest girl the world, am anxiously awaiting your return."

Wheeling, Va., financial backers of the flight, who also went sleepless while the American Girl was in the air, said that their faith was pinned on Haldeman's ability as a pilot and that they believed all along that he would pull through somehow.

"Go on to Paris," they instructed Haldeman and Miss Elder by wireless last night, "and keep the flag which is justly due."

BACKER WILLING RUTH CAPITALIZE ON FLIGHT

Wheeling, Va., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—H. D. Merriam, one of the Wheeling backers of the flight of the American Girl, said today that "if Ruth Elder is able to explain her exploit in a monetary way through some legitimate enterprise, she will have the hearty co-operation of her Wheeling backers."

BARTLETT, RICH TEXTILE MAN, IS DIVORCED

The second matrimonial venture of Raymond S. Bartlett, prominent in United States textile circles, and his wife ended today when Judge McCool in Suffolk Probate Court granted Mrs. Bartlett a divorce for cruel and abusive treatment.

In 1919 Bartlett was granted a divorce on the same grounds, in Middlesex County, but on February 28, 1921, the couple remarried.

As a result of the latest divorce, Mrs. Bartlett is to have the custody of her four children, Dorothy R., Raymond T., Joan R., and Margaret.

No request for alimony was made as the husband created a trust for the benefit of Mrs. Bartlett and the children. The Old Colony Trust Co. and John H. Devine, the wife's counsel, are trustees. Under the agreement Mrs. Bartlett, who lives in Winchester, is to be paid $1,000 a month and $2,500 for legal expenses. Also she is to have all the furnishings in the home at No. 7 Church street, Winchester, together with life insurance policies to the amount of $63,000, and a further sum of $10,000 is to be used to provide a home for her and the children.

First married at Boston on January 29, 1914, the Bartletts lived at Andover, and at Winchester until Mrs. Bartlett filed her petition for divorce in Suffolk Probate Court.

Remus Says Imogene Urged Bootlegging

This continues the life story of George Remus, wife killer, now a prisoner in the Hamilton County jail at Cincinnati, after a rise from immigrant boy to ownership of a string of drug stores, to a position as a successful lawyer, over the line of legality to "master mind" in a gigantic bootlegging conspiracy which ended in his sentence to the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

By GEORGE REMUS

(As told to the Boston Evening American and Universal Service)

(Copyright, 1927, by the Boston Evening American and Universal Service)

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 14.—In my last year or two in Chicago I had begun to deal in warehouse receipts for whiskey in bonded warehouses.

I had made a considerable amount of money that way and had become familiar, too, with the intricacies of the laws governing liquor. Among my clients I numbered several distilleries and bonded warehouses.

I knew that Cincinnati was the headquarters for many of the leading interests in the United States. I decided that Cincinnati offered me a real field. I talked it over with Imogene Holmes. She agreed with me. She said she had many friends there and we could do well.

The "we" that she used started me, because I had honestly never thought of marrying her then. But I realized that I would probably have to marry her, that as long as

BROKER FACES NEW CHARGES

Additional charges were placed against Elmer M. Johnson, accused former stock broker, when he was arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with conducting a "bucket shop" and larceny of money and securities from customers.

Johnson was granted a continuance until tomorrow, being released under bonds of $5,000.

The accused man's wife intends to discontinue the bail she obtained for her husband from a professional bondsmen and put up money that a relative has offered, according to the police.

Police Inspectors Magarity and Parrell made the new complaint, alleging larceny of $1,200 from Frank F. Matton of Somerville on July 12, 1927, through misbehaving of Ashton, Studebaker and Paige-Detroit shares.

LOVE INSPIRES BLIND YOUTH'S GOLD TENOR

By FRANCES L. BAIRD.

Love's magic touched the voice of 20-year-old blind Giovanni Cerullo, whose golden tenor notes thrilled 5,000 persons assembled around Falmington tonight during the Columbus Day exercises.

Although the multitude accorded him a tremendous ovation as he finished the last note of Tosca's "Good bye," Giovanni continued today that he heard in spirit only the praise of her who has steadfastly encouraged him to cultivate his voice and who declared when he was her pupil in the Curry School of Expression, last Summer, that "He has the voice of an angel."

She is many miles from Boston, for she is a dramatic teacher in Gould Academy, Bethel, Me., and her name, he will not tell.

LETTERS READ TO HIM.

"Dorothy has been my inspiration from the first," the sightless young artist said, in the studio of his teacher, Raffaele Martino, No. 373A Massachusetts avenue. "She writes constantly, urging me to devote all my time to my voice culture, and always predicting 'such a glorious future for me.'"

The young artist blushed when he had to admit that Dorothy's letters were read to him by his beloved teacher, Martino, who observed that he gets the best work out of Giovanni by picturing himself standing by.

Cerullo had been ambitious for three years to sing but instructors

DURANT CLUB PETITION

At the request of Mayor Nichols the city board of zoning adjustment met in executive session at City Hall today and reviewed its action in the case of the petition of Durant, Inc., asking that the corporation be permitted to construct a 12,000,000 watt electric station in Huntington avenue to a height of 155 feet. Under the present zoning law, buildings may be erected in that district to a height of 55 feet. It is understood that the board had previously been deadlocked, five voting in favor of permitting Durant to build to a height of 155 feet and five being opposed. Eight votes are needed to grant the permit.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Mrs. S. Parker Bremer to Make Debut on Stage of Jordan Hall, November 17

EVEN WITH THE SOCIAL SAUCE SO HIGHLY FLAVORED WITH HUNT MEETS and affairs for the sweet girl buds, Society savors with great relish the musical treats in store. One evening joined down in countless engagements of the season set is November 17, when many of the upper strata will flock into Jordan Hall for the concert stage debut of Mrs. S. Parker Bremer. Naturally there is the greatest anticipatory interest for such an occasion among Bostonians.

MRS. BREMER, WHO IS VERY LOVELY TO LOOK UPON, WILL DELIGHT THE more as well as the ear when she appears on the stage at Jordan Hall. A Summer spent in the hills of New England preceded by a Winter in Rome putting some finishing touches on her art has been Mrs. Bremer's program. None in the entire smart set will watch her debut with keener interest than the three daughters, Mrs. Henry Harwick Faxon (Edith Bremer), Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr. (Ruth Bremer), and Miss Mabel Bremer.

TO THE HONORS AND TITLES FOLLOWING AFTER THE NAME OF H. WENDELL ENDICOTT is now added a new one. It is "chairman of the opera committee." With the much liked and keenly executive Mr. Endicott at the helm, arrangements for Boston's season of Chicago Grand Opera are moving along with the smoothness of clockwork. The Opera House will burst into brilliance for the usual season, sometime after the New Year. The committee's new personnel also includes James Phelan, able financier, as treasurer. Could a committee be better equipped for success?

THE OPERA GUARANTORS LIST IS ALWAYS INTERESTING, AND THIS SEASON new and imposing names are being inscribed on the scroll. Offices will soon be set up in a most convenient spot, and before very long the wheels will be revolving merrily and smoothly, bringing out the mass of detail that is necessary to such a stupendous undertaking. I hear that the committee is arranging for Boston's consumption the very best Chicago has to offer—promise of a noteworthy season.

LIKE A BREATHER OF OTHER DAYS COMES THE CHARITY BALL BACK INTO the Winter's social program. Time was when a Charity Ball marked the crest of a season's brilliance and brought out all the belles and their gallants to trip a measure. Now it takes its way into the frivolous echos as Boston arranges it to benefit what is today the "Christopher Ship" and has served its ends so finely under other designations—namely the "James Marsh Jackson League" and the "Tide Over League."

DEVOTED ADHERENTS TO THE CHRISTOPHER SHIP CAUSE PLAN AN ENTERTAINMENT on November 8 for their charitable enterprise, with the Ball as its climax. For the better that occupies the daytime hours various matrons will do the selling. At the table for jans and jellies Mrs. Robert Just Paine, Mrs. Judd Dewey, Mrs. Francis Minot and Mrs. Hollis Shaw will be under the able leadership of Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons.

MRS. EMMONS ALSO IS CHAIRMAN FOR MUSIC, AND BEING a connoisseur of the merits of modern dance orchestras it is to be assumed that both orchestra and music will be up-to-the-minute or a step ahead. I believe the organization selected is one that has had an English and a Continental success, making sensational appearances at Dinard, Paris and London. And what has so pleased there is certain to be appreciated here.

SURELY THERE'S NO SET MORE STRENUOUS IN ITS SPORTS than the Norfolk Hunt! Too content with a Race Meet for one day's fare the Norfolk set adds for good measure a run of the drag hounds. On Saturday week the Hunt turns out almost to a man (and of course to a woman) for the Willowdale Meet at Bradley Palmer's magnificent Topfield estate. This is in the morning. And at four in the afternoon their rendezvous many miles from Willowdale, at Burke's Corner in Sherborn for a run.

HUNTING APPOINTMENTS FOR THE REMAINDER OF OCTOBER bring out the Norfolk drag hounds every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Saturdays in both instances have the appointment for afternoon, while Tuesdays and Thursdays find Norfolk riders cheerfully undaunted by the hours of seven fifteen and seven twenty in the morning. Henry G. Vaughan, Master, is completing another season in his long and extraordinarily successful career as Master.

real queens—Elizabeth, Marie, Theresa, Semiramis and especially, that African queen, Tommy, whose son was killed by Kila Kila, when the son foolishly got drunk on wine that Cyrus left as a trap.

Tommy, who had warned Cyrus not to hurt her son, caught the great king, chopped off his head, put it in a goat skin full of human blood, saying: "Now drink all you like." "Only a girl" does not describe her, or Bertha, mother of Charlemagne;

Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln; Letitia Hamilton, the broad tipped mother of Napoleon, or Olympia, who made Alexander the Great. Which is your favorite mother in history?

The breaking point comes at different places in different individuals. Othello choked his mother because he was suspicious. She had done nothing. The Drumsel hunchback murdered his brother and his wife because they made eyes at each other. Things like that would not disturb Frank Costello of Chicago. When she put poison in his wine, she only demonstrated with his wife, gently. When she tried to choke him he locked himself in his room and waited patiently for when she killed his 20 emerald birds, he said for divorce.

Marconi will be welcomed everywhere in America as one of the world's great teachers and benefactors.

He is one of many living proofs that ancient genius, inherited from the Romans, still exists and works in our day.

No nation surpasses Italy in its contributions to civilization, art, science, and the elevation of the human race generally.

No nation has contributed more to the building of this country than Italy, through the thousands of good workers and able business men sent here.

AUTOMATION IS OPERATED BY TELEPHONE

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—A "mechanical man" whose faculties are at both ends of a telephone connection and whose functions imitate those of human workers today held the centre of the stage of scientific achievement.

This modified automation responded to the voice of a master as effectively as a servant to the housewife, a clerk to a bookkeeper and a mechanic in the garages.

The machine, an electrical control known as the "Televisor," was demonstrated by R. J. Wenzel, engineer for the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

The device has an extremely sensitive ear, attuned to voice sound waves that must be distinctly carried to a mechanical "brain."

Orders are issued through a tuning fork into the telephone which is attached to a small loud speaker.

The telephone connection is made in the usual way. When the bell rings a ringing relay calls into action the equipment, which lifts the receiver.

Amplifiers then take up the sounds that come over the wire, the different sounds thus magnified controlling different wires, and the current thus transmitted flowing on or off a switch, as desired.

MRS. BUOLONG 'SPITTING SELF,' SAYS JUDGE

Newport, R. I., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Judge Herbert Carpenter, after several clashes with Mrs. Jessie Marjorie Buolong, who claims to be an attorney, had placed herself on the witness stand today in the trial of the divorce suit brought by Milton J. Buolong, remarked to her: "It is a shame you can't have a lawyer. It is plain you can't do it yourself."

He added that he wished her to have a fair trial "in spite of herself."

Judge Carpenter acquiesced in the suggestion of Mr. Buolong's counsel that the only manner in which the case could be finished was to let her go ahead in her own way, as owing to her ignorance of the law it would be useless to try the case in a legal way.

Mrs. Buolong, who was repeatedly admonished by the court that testimony about matters not material to the suit was not desired, made a general denial of her husband's charges of cruelty and extravagance.

Asked why she had filed suit for divorce some time ago she said it was because she had been driven from the Reef, the Buolong estate in Newport, and had to protect her children.

When Judge Carpenter expressed the wish that the trial might be expedited, she asserted: "I shall not be through today."

REVERE CHIEF TO HOLD JOB 3 MONTHS MORE

Edward J. Tiede, acting head of the Revere police department, was given another temporary appointment of three months by Mayor John E. Walsh of that city today.

It is understood that a permanent appointment of Tiede as chief of police is held up pending the outcome of an appeal made by former Chief John Byrne, who was discharged March 1, and who will be granted a hearing in Chelsea court next Tuesday morning.

ALLEGED 'FENCE' IN BELMONT POSTAL ROBBERY IS HELD

Dorchester, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Alvin Karpis, indicted by the federal grand jury on 12 counts, including receiving stolen goods from the Postoffice post office, pleaded not guilty in United States court today and was held in $10,000 bail.

He was named in indictments which also charged "Postoffice" John Connelley, John Daly and George Sarno with the $25,000 stamp robbery February 1, 1925, and Max Gallagher, charged with concealing government property.

MOTHER DEFIES THE WORLD IN ACID PLOT

Asserting that she was under fire on the war front at Verdun, and would have readily taken any risk to trap the man who threatened to disgrace her daughter with acid, Anne Coleman Ladd, sister of an attempt to extort $10,000, today defied anybody to attack her or her daughter.

The writer got the wrong party when he threatened her," she said. "I know of four or five other mothers who are motivated by the same sort of cowardice, one frightened off to Europe, another in bed with nervous prostration."

The mother of the beautiful Vernon Abbott Ladd, whose beauty was threatened with mutilation, continued:

"I determined to draw his fire to myself whom he threatened to wound to the end of my days unless I complied with his demand for money, and so I put the money where he dictated in order that he would see and mark me. If he had threatened to shoot me I should have told him to go ahead—I was under fire in Verdun and thought nothing of shells and bomb fire. I defy him to touch my child."

WOMAN STARTS RECORD FLIGHT OF 13,000 MILES

Croydon, Eng., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Each carrying a small suitcase, Mrs. Keith Miller and Captain W. N. Lancaster climbed into their airplane "Red Rose" and started on a flight of 13,000 miles to Australia, the longest air journey ever undertaken by a woman.

They will fly to stages across Europe to Africa, then along the imperial airway route to India and over Burma, Siam and the Dutch East Indies to Port Darwin, Northern Australia.

Snow Forecasters Have Only Two More Days

Only two more days after today to make snow forecasts and get them into the mails. The deadline is midnight next Sunday and the idea is to forecast the correct day and hour, or nearest the correct day and hour, when the first snow will fall in Metropolitan Boston.

No forecasts, the envelope of which shows a postmark later than midnight on Sunday will be considered. There are six tons of coal and six tons of coke forthcoming as a result of the forecasts, so rush them in.

Send forecasts to "Snow Man," Boston Evening American, No. 5 Whitworth Square, Boston.

PLOT TO MARRY GIRL'S BEAUTY

writer should be arrested in the act of collecting the money.

Having won fair fame as a sculptress with exhibitions at the leading American academies of art, Mrs. Ladd achieved unique renown when she was named an accredited representative of the War Department and went to France to restore the features of disfigured soldiers.

It was pioneer work and European surgeons had long tried to solve the problem in their own way, but Mrs. Ladd showed them something new and many of them quickly adopted her method.

She first obtained a pre-war photograph of her patient and then made a plaster cast of the mangled face. A star model was then made and finally copper-plate mask was fashioned, this being fitted into the soldier's face and held with spectacle frames.

TRAPPED IN 1925

Her husband, Dr. Maynard Ladd, who is a specialist on children's cases, was also in France during the war and was given special recognition by the United States and the allies for his services.

William Ladd, on one leg, due to an injury received while an infant, and when he was arrested in the Cambridge cases two years ago, he said that he demanded money so as to get funds for operations. His mother said that was not true, as thousands of dollars already had been spent in an effort to remedy his deformity and more money was available, if needed.

His letters at that time were signed "Brotherhood of Death." He was trapped by the Cambridge police who planted a messenger boy on the Western avenue bridge with a package which William took to be $2500 he demanded from Miss Longfellow.

At that time it was discovered that William had a list of 100 motion picture actresses to whom he wrote, signing himself "Billy Boy" and other such names.

He wrote the threatening letters to the other women while crouched in his room after telling his mother he was going to solve a batch of crossword puzzles.

All his letters, together with a record of motion picture stars that he kept, were in red ink. He was examined by Dr. C. MacFarlane Campbell of the Psychopathic Hospital and pronounced

FATHER OF KALE GIRL WEEPS COURT

Stella Kale's murder, gazed at the father curiously. Stanislaus Fomikala had been testifying to the gifts of a wrist watch and a ring he made his daughter Stella on successive Christmases. He had told of her last days at home in Lawrence, of her departure for Salisbury Beach on May 20 to begin work as a photographer's assistant, and he had been telling of next seeing his daughter bruised and dead, in an undertaker's parlor.

Under examination by District Attorney William G. Clark, the father testified:

Q—How many children did you have? A—I had six, but now I have five. One died.

Q—Is this the watch you gave your daughter, Stella? A—Yes, that looks like it.

Q—Did you also give your daughter a ring? A—Yes, last Christmas I gave her a ring with a red stone in it.

Q—When did you next see your daughter after she went away to Salisbury Beach? A—When she died, I saw her in the undertaker's room.

IDENTIFIES PICTURE.

Q—Is this a picture of your daughter? A—Yes, that is my daughter.

Fomikala then broke down and for a time halted proceedings. District Attorney O'Sell announced that he would not cross-examine.

William Dow, housepainter of Kensington, N. H., testified as a riding home from Hampton Falls, N. H., late in the afternoon of June 5 when he saw a man walking and asked if he wished to ride. The man climbed in.

Q—By District Attorney Clark: Did you have any conversation with the man while driving? A—Yes, he said his wife had died in Pittsburgh and he was looking for a job and had not anything to eat for two days. I told him I had half of my lunch in my tin box and told him to go to it and he did.

SALE OF WATCH.

Q—Any other conversation? A—Yes, when we got out of the truck he said he had his wife's wrist watch, for which he paid $25 and $150 for the bracelet, and told me to sell it for him for $5. When he handed me the watch he dropped a ring, went to Amesbury with my daughter and turned over this watch to a State officer.

Q—Is there any doubt that the man was Taylor, in the man whom you bought the watch from? A—Dow created laughter in the courtroom when, in declaring that Taylor's appearance today is a bit altered from his appearance at the time Dow identified him, said: "He looked a little heavier, and at that time he had a Charlie Chaplin mustache, no bigger than your little finger, it heavier now."

Dow's daughter, Mrs. Nellie Gertrude Dickinson, followed her father to the stand. She was the second woman witness of the trial and also testified relative to the watch and the being turned over to the police. Her mother had told her the watch had three days before newspaper descriptions of Red Kale's missing watch led to the turning over of the timepiece to the police, the daughter said.

Previously, Dr. Timothy Ladd testified that Stella Kale died from asphyxiation and that the neck was covered with abrasions from ear to ear.

The Boston official had been testifying only five minutes today when it was necessary to call a recess because the court stenographer, who has just finished a long trial in Lawrence, suffered an attack of "writer's cramp," or a touch of neuritis.

DOG IN RACE MASCOT.

Thomas Troce, father alone in a "Standard" plane with a 15-minute handicap, took off at 11:11 and landed in Providence at 12:20 noon. The fourth and last plane, a "Travelair" carrying Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kenyon of Chestnut Hill avenue, Newton; Miss Lorraine Deane of Newton, and "Doot," a toy poodle dog mascot, took off at 11:21 with a 15-minute handicap and landed at 12:07.

Boston and Providence were locked up into the skies as the mothers of the four planes roared over each city in the race whose ending opened officially a three-day aviation meet under the auspices of Providence Post, American Legion, and the Town Circle.

CIRCLE WAYS HOUSES.

In both Boston and Providence the ships circled the State House and went once over the downtown district, affording all on the street an opportunity to view the latest types of everyday aircraft.

Because there was no desire to force the ships to the straining point under a wide-open throttle, the race was based on an "average cruising time" selected by the judges.

This ideal time between the two fields was sealed in an envelope and to the nearest competitors went the cups.

SATURDAY morning at nine our four doors open on the greater and newer Chandler & Co., and with the opening of these doors we invite, and heartily welcome, the women and misses of all New England. We are proud of and enthusiastic about our new store and also our old store. We have stopped at nothing to secure the best. We feel that New England deserves and wants the best, so we have tried to bring Paris, the center of style, to Boston, with the result, we believe, that New York, London or Paris has nothing better to offer.

WE are expanding our many departments and perfecting the methods which have been responsible for our remarkable growth during the past 117 years. We are committed to the retailing of women's wear, and outside of two departments devoted to the finer appointments of the home, we like to be known as dealers in women's clothes. So, with this new venture of ours we plan to strengthen and broaden along the same lines that have been so successful in the past. We invite the public to see how well and wisely we have planned for them, how consistently we have held to our policy.

IT is interesting to note that about five generations of women have used this store, and one of our aims in broadening our business is to maintain and improve wherever possible the same careful and painstaking service, by means of employing the same high class of people to serve you. Our interest is that you be pleased, satisfied and correctly dressed.

WE want everyone to come and see departments they are familiar with, doubled in size, some in new locations. We want them to see the new departments, each, we might say, a shop in itself. So Saturday will be open house, from the beautiful new street floor departments, up through millinery, fur, coat and dress departments, through our new corset and underwear departments, to the new oriental rug department on the ninth floor. Truly a great store.

WE welcome you... Saturday is the day... Nine A. M. the time... you are the guests... we are the hosts.

LOS ANGELES ON RETURN TRIP

Newport, R. I., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The dirigible Los Angeles cut loose from her mooring ship the Patches anchored west of the training station, at 10:30 this morning and after circling over Newport headed west on her way toward New Jersey and her base at Lakehurst.

The big ship held a course which followed the shore line, but was headed over the western part of the State, probably 10 or 15 miles inland from Long Island Sound.

She is on a training cruise in command of Lieutenant-Commander Charles E. Rosendahl.

Crime Increases in Hub, Records Show

Crime in Boston is on the increase, according to the annual report of the Roxbury Court for the year ending September 30, which was made public today.

The report shows the court handled a total of 10,811 cases, the largest in its history, increases being shown in cases of drunkenness, liquor law violations and non-support; and a 100 per cent. increase in automobile law violations.

There were 4,700 cases of drunkenness as against 4,327 the previous year. 350 non-support cases, compared to 350 the year before. 795

STOCKHOLDERS TO SUE FORD

Detroit, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Possibility of legal action against Henry Ford and the Ford organization by original stockholders of the Lincoln Motor Company, which the Ford Company acquired at a receiver's sale in 1925, has been indicated by Kenneth M. Stevens, counsel for the estate of Henry M. Leland, one of the original stockholders.

Stevens said he had learned of it from a circular sent to stockholders, but that he was not at liberty to state the basis of the suit or the names of those sponsoring it.

The Leland estate held a large block of stock in the Lincoln Motor Company, organized here in 1917, which was the plant manufactured airplane motors. In 1921 the company went into the hands of a receiver and was acquired the following year by Ford at a receiver's sale for an announced price of $8,000,000.

NEW HELP FOR MOTHERS

-a delicious quick-cooking cereal

When children's appetites lag, the flavor of Post's Wheat Meal tempts little folks to eat

EVERY MOTHER knows that there are times when children can't be forced to eat. You cannot drive a balky appetite, you must lure it back with flavor. Here is delicious cereal flavor to tempt the lagging appetite.

This new cereal is Post's Wheat Meal, a whole wheat cereal that provides for children essential food elements for growth and health.* It is a new cereal that gives to mothers a long-wished-for breakfast help—a quick-cooking whole wheat cereal.

Ready to serve in 2½ minutes

Mothers know that whole wheat cereals require thorough cooking. Post's Wheat Meal is partially pre-cooked for your convenience, so that you can serve it thoroughly cooked in 2½ minutes.

Its aroma tempts both young and old with a promise of the flavor yet to come. Its golden color tells you that it is whole wheat—nature's world-old health food. Order a package from your grocer. Try it—and its delicious flavor will earn for it the regular place it deserves upon your breakfast table.

*Served with milk or cream, Post's Wheat Meal provides:

- Vitamins for growth
- Proteins for body building
- Carbohydrates for energy
- Minerals for sound teeth and sturdy bones
- Bran for healthful regularity

BANDITS HOLD 2 MARINE FLIERS IN NICARAGUA

Managua, Nicaragua, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Two American marine corps aviators who disappeared while on patrol duty in northern Nicaragua are believed to be held by bandits.

Second Lieutenant E. A. Thomas of Richmond, Ind., and Sergeant Frank E. Dowell of Carbondale were patrolling the Guatimala district when their machine crashed and burned near Mount Chapultepec.

Hunter's Gun Stolen Year Ago; Reports It to Police Now

Denver, Col., Oct. 14.—Here's one man who believes in the old saying, "It's better late than never" as far as the police are concerned.

"I want to hunt ducks, but someone stole my shotgun," Jack Stinks reported in the police.

"When?" he was asked.

"On October 21, 1926."

"Why didn't you report it at once?" inquired the desk sergeant.

"I didn't need it then," replied Stinks.

NEW YORK SHOW GIRLS MUST DRESS UP!

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Broadway theatres will have to dress up their show girls and tame down their language or somebody is going to jail, said an ultimatum from District Attorney Benton today.

The district attorney issued his pronouncement in a theatrical context by traveling to "the" stage of undressed women, if necessary by hooking up patrol wagons to the stage doors and taking the performers just as they are to night court so the judges can see what audiences are compelled to look at.

Under the new amendments to the penal code convictions may be obtained against plays for any indecent exposure of immodest action or speech.

Benton said he would follow up such prosecutions by seeking revocation of licenses that would close the offending theatres for one year.

Refusing to name the new Broadway shows which he said stirred complaints and provoked his edict, Benton explained he did not care to give them any such choice publicity.

"I intend to treat the stage the same as we treated the night club. Clothing must be lowered at the bottom and raised at the top, while offending lines and situations must be ended."

Three shows were closed and night clubs modified their revues following a cleanup campaign by District Attorney Benton last Spring.

SALLIES PLAN FOR ANNUAL HUB DRIVE

Plans for the forthcoming general maintenance appeal of the Salvation Army in Greater Boston will be formulated at a luncheon to be held at the Chamber of Commerce Monday noon.

The luncheon will be attended by the committee chairman and members of the industrial division, of which Mr. George B. Wright, prominent Boston coffee merchant, is the head. Sidney S. Conrad, president of Conrad & Co. and head of the Salvation Army advisory board in Boston, will also attend the luncheon and will speak.

The advisory board is the body appealing for $137,500 for the operation of the 24 departments of the Army which serve Greater Boston.

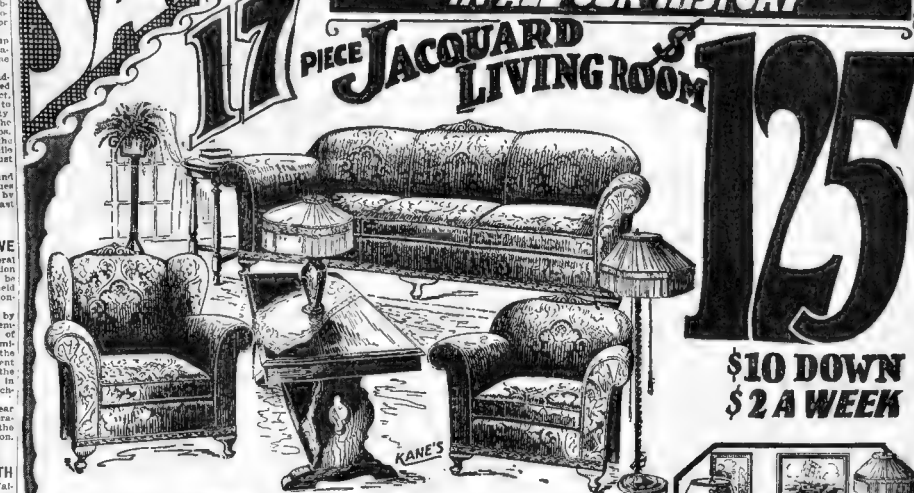

FARMER AND WIFE HELD IN SLAYING OF SMITH

Providence, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Walter E. Simmons, 60, Foster farmer, and his wife Frances, 49, were held here today by the State police in connection with the death of Fred M. Smith 60, Zionsville Mills store proprietor.

Smith's body was found in the woods near his home Wednesday. Death was due to a gunshot wound.

CONGRESS MAY PASS OFFICIAL LOAN O. K.

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—A declaration in Congress for at least a declaration against the State Department policy of approving or disapproving American private loans to foreign governments appears in prospect.

This policy was denounced by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, as one opening the flood to foreign loans and to the State Department's power to approve or disapprove American private loans to foreign governments appears in prospect.

ADMITTS SIGNING PAYROLL IN N. Y. CENSUS PROBE

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14 (U.P.)—Investigation of charges that Mrs. Florence P. R. Knapp, former Secretary of State, signed payrolls of the 1920 census fund started today.

Julia M. Ryan, chief clerk of the civil service department, was the first witness called by Randall I. Leland, Jr., assistant to Governor Smith to lift the charges against Mrs. Knapp.

Senator Brook, Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and other Senators also are definitely on record against a continuation of the policy which the Senate insists is not authorized by any law.

Mistaken Cigarette Spark for Coyote Eye, Kills Man

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Oct. 14 (AP)—Mistaking a burning cigarette for the eye of a coyote, Ollie McNeve, of this city, shot and killed an unidentified man on Elk Creek near Newcastle, Colo., last night.

McNeve was sitting on a log smoking a cigarette, McNeve told Sheriff George Winter. McNeve left the body in the woods and went to Newcastle for aid.

It had been Miss Little's duty for years to keep careful record of the census fund.

McNeve admitted that her sister, Mrs. Knapp, was on the census list, and that she had signed the payrolls of more than $200,000 under the name of Mrs. Knapp.

PLAN FOR U. S. OPERATION OF SHOALS

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—Government operation of Muscle Shoals, Tenn., early at best, looks now as more than a possibility.

Should Congress terminate the seven years' struggle over disposal of the great nitrate and hydroelectric plant on the Tennessee River in this manner, it would be a victory for Senator Norris of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Senator and other favoring permanent government operation are willing to support a permanent federal control, as they believe that the experiment will conclusively prove the force of the argument that federal control will mean cheaper power to consumers.

Marion Nixon Starring With Ben Lyons Now

By LORELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—A new co-starring team in Ben Lyons and Marion Nixon. You ask me how that can be since Ben Lyons belongs to First National and Marion Nixon is a University player. Very simple, Ben Lyons has been lent to Universal to play the male lead in "Honeycomb Plate," an Earl Derr Sigler story, opposite Miss Nixon. Millard Webb the director, is already at Universal City getting ready to shoot. Censor in the corner Owan Lee and Bryant Washburn.

I am told Ben Lyons expects to make four pictures before he goes to New York. Personally, I don't think he will stay away from Manhattan that long. He admits there is a strong attraction there. He came to Marilyn Miller.

The bride, Mrs. Irving Thalberg—perhaps I should say Norma Shearer when I speak of her film career—is preparing to appear in an original story by F. V. Young which deals with the trials and tribulations of a traveling saleswoman. From Norma's description, it sounds as if she is "His Secretary," when many people consider her best picture. Sam Wood will direct her.

DIRECTOR IN DEMAND. "Treason of the Wells" is only postponed until Sidney Franklin is able to direct it. Norma said that she could not see any other director of this mid-Victorian tale but Mr. Franklin. Anyone who saw "Quality Street," a Marion Davies picture, will agree that Sidney Franklin is a director worth the wait for.

They seem to love May McAvoy busy at Warner Brothers' studio. The picture handed her is almost as numerous as the reports of her engagements. Nearly a week passes that May is not rumored to be in some Hollywood film man.

His next picture will be "The Little Book" by George Gaffney. The scenario is by Robert Lord and the adaptation by E. T. Lowe, Jr. George O'Brien called on F. W. Murnau when he was ahead and returned home with the news that he expected to play in "The Four Devils." Since "Starline," Murnau has had his heart set on playing in as many Murnau pictures as possible. Murnau isn't ready to start work, and J. G. Riveaux is ready. Consequently, O'Brien begins work in the Hyattsville picture immediately. Lola Moran, who is to have a series of special productions for the coming year, has the genuine lead.

COPIES TO GO ABOARD. The Convention of the American Federation of Labor revealed a bit of news. Al Bress has been named as a conciliatory representative of the labor men. It means that when there are any labor jams in the motion picture industry, Mr. Bress will try to straighten out the differences by conferring with the motion picture Academy of Arts and Sciences. Lew Cody and Shari Norman are now going to Paris on a vacation as soon as Lew finishes his vaudeville tour. Bet you a cookie when Mabel and Lew everyone will say his Paris and a divorce.

They feel Frances Marion is worth her salary at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for she has just been signed for a long-term contract. Frances

BROKERS SLAIN IN GANG WAR

Cleveland, O., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Two commission merchants, brothers, were shot and killed by ambush in a barber shop here. They were Joseph and John Leonardo. Identity of the two gangsters as well as their motive had police baffled today.

The Leonardos, well known as sugar brokers, but still better known to detectives through their police records, were shot in cold blood. Their assistants evidently had preceded themselves in the barber shop before the victims entered.

"Short Pants Bandits" Keep Police Busy With Hold-Ups

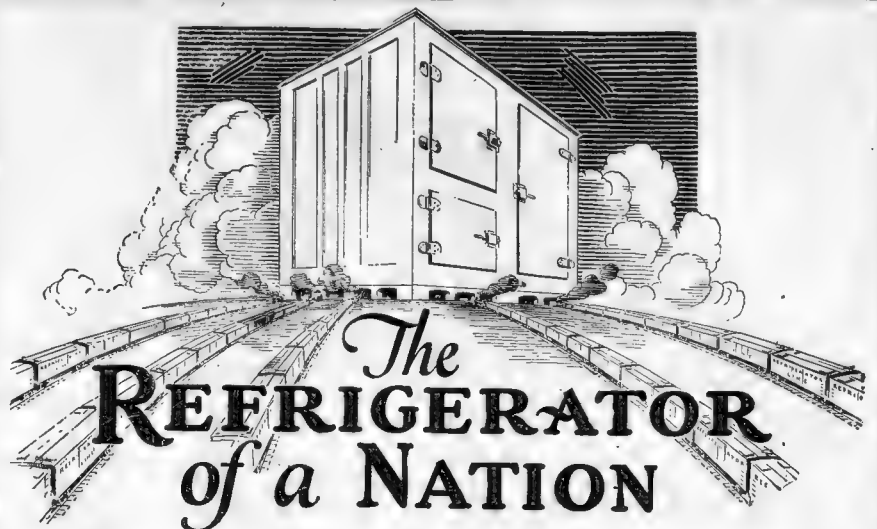

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Three youths, suspected of belonging to a gang of "short pants bandits," perpetrators of several hold-ups here recently, were arrested today in a deserted barn on the north side of the city. For two weeks the police have been investigating complaints from pedestrians who were knocked down at night and robbed. In each case the victim said he was held up by "an older youth and several boys wearing short pants." From this description the group came to be known as the "short pants gang."

JANIS' VOICE AGAIN LOST

Beverly Hills, Cal., Oct. 14.—Eddie Janis, musical comedy star, who lost her voice last Friday night during her performance at the Los Angeles Theatre, was compelled to return to silence again after a brief interlude of speech. Her physician, Dr. C. E. O. Wood, said that, although the actress' condition is not serious, it was so sudden that she made no use of her voice, even for conversational purposes, at present. Dr. Wood estimated it will be a month or two before Miss Janis is able to resume her stage work. She should be able to engage in conversation in a week or two. Miss Janis plans to return East for a long rest as soon as she is able to travel. It is believed she will be sufficiently recovered to begin her journey Monday.

This is exactly what the Cold Storage Warehouse has come to be. Without it, famine would face the cities of our land. But as a result of it, food prices are stabilized and the nation has plenty to eat, enjoying all the year a wide variety of out-of-season delicacies.

SCIENTIFIC refrigeration, as practiced by the Cold Storage Warehouses of America, is one of civilization's greatest boons.

Cold Storage prevents hungry cities

How could the population, especially city folks, get along without it? The answer is—very scantily. At times, there would be a great scarcity of food, and little variety, at prices which few could afford.

Nearly half the people of America live in thickly populated centers, where little food is produced.

Massachusetts, for example, produces only 15% of the perishable foods she consumes. 85% is imported from other states. Much of this comes in refrigerator cars, then is kept in Cold Storage until it is needed.

Of course, at certain seasons, the seasons of flush production, the nation's supplies are abundant; eggs in April, May and June; butter and cheese from June to September; poultry from September to December; fish from June to November; apples and other fruits from September to November.

A feast or a famine

Before the era of refrigeration, the output of such perishable products was limited to what could immediately be consumed. To produce in excess of current needs was merely a waste of surplus.

In those days, it was either a feast or a famine. In season—an abundance at prices so low as to offer little incentive to the producer; out of season—scarcity, meagre variety, exorbitant prices.

Cold Storage changed this situation. It introduced a method by which surplus supplies could be kept in their original condition until needed during the lean months. It gave the producer a year round market for his goods. It helped to regulate prices.

Cold Storage—a price regulator

Regarding prices, here is what the Massachusetts Commission on the Necessities of Life says:

"The effect of cold storage is in general to make prices steadier, preventing extreme fluctuations, either upward or downward. The supply is reduced by the storing of products in time of plenty, and the prices consequently do not fall so low. The supply is increased by marketing all stored products in time of scarcity, and prices consequently do not rise so high."

The verdict of various commissions investigating the subject of food costs in recent years has been unanimous to the effect that the welfare of the nation is dependent on Cold Storage.

This fact is so well recognized in Canada that the government there pays a subsidy of 30% to any man who will erect a Cold Storage plant where it is needed.

How long should foods be stored?

That is a question very frequently asked. The United States Department of Agriculture, after an exhaustive research covering several years, answered it in these words:

"Poultry, meats, fish, butter, eggs and some other products, if received in good condition and properly stored can be held from seven to twelve months without appreciable loss in flavor and for much longer periods without loss in food value or general wholesomeness."

Broadly speaking, however, commodities are held in Cold Storage only from the season of flush production to the season of slack production—an average of from three to five months.

What is a Cold Storage Warehouse like?

Fundamentally, its construction is that of a huge refrigerator. The walls are insulated so as to keep cold in and heat out, and the rooms are maintained at the correct temperatures for various commodities by refrigeration.

In a modern Cold Storage warehouse, the temperatures, as well as the ventilation and humidity, are under constant scientific control, thus giving to food products of many kinds the individual conditions known to be necessary for their best preservation from season to season.

Changed—the habits of a nation

There are now in the United States approximately 1400 of these great "Refrigerators of a Nation." Combined, they have a total storage capacity of 885,000,000 cubic feet of space, represent an investment of more than $200,000,000, and handle in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 carloads of refrigerator freight per year.

Cold Storage has changed the living habits of the nation. With the help of swift refrigerator trains it provides you with seasonal produce throughout the year, and makes available at every market the production of the whole country.

PEKING'S ARMY ROUTS 80,000

Peking, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—A spokesman for the Chinese army, which today routed the 80,000 men of the Japanese army, said that the Japanese army, which had been virtually annihilated by the Chinese army, was now retreating.

However, two Shantung divisions, which had been sent to aid the Chinese army, were routed within 20 miles of Peking and are now retreating.

Strong reinforcements have been dispatched to deal with this new advance to Peking, which the spokesman for the Chinese army declared would soon be disposed of by the Chinese army.

2 ARE HELD IN TAXI SLAYING

Because indictment warrants have been granted to replace two court warrants on which Charles Foley, alias Edward W. Allen, and George E. Bartlett, alias "Al" Doyle, both of Columbus avenue, were arrested for the alleged murder of Policeman John Condon, the criminal complaints were dismissed in Municipal Court today and the men were held without bail for trial in Superior Court.

Allen and Bartlett are charged with slaying Officer Condon on October 12. Condon was shot in a taxi in which the two defendants are alleged to have been seated.

low tide tomorrow morning, was due to weather reports which showed adverse conditions extending across the North Atlantic. In accordance with her expressed determination to wait for the best conditions obtainable, Mrs. Grayson ignored the pleasant weather here and waited for the word of the weatherman. With Miss Wilmer Stutz and Navigator Bruce Goldsborough, she occupied the confined quarters by making an inspection of the bit plane, seeing assurance that it could be landed in the gulf which swept the beach yesterday.

The day's intent of the crew of The Dawn was interrupted by the warm rays of the sun, which beat down on them beneficently, tempered by a light breeze. Goldsborough, who is radio operator, to wit, at navigator, tested out his instrument, working with Portland and Boston. In case of a forced landing, when the regular antenna signal beam submerged, Goldsborough said he would put up a kite with an antenna to be attached to the other end being turned to the radio set on The Dawn.

AWAIT LOW TIDE. It appeared probable that the trip will not be made before 7 a. m. tomorrow, when low tide will permit a long run over the beach. Mrs. Grayson said she rejoiced at the safety of Miss Wilmer and wished "she had made it." Mrs. Grayson is confident she will be the first of her sex to fly across the Atlantic.

Cream your Coffee—hot or iced—this way

Coffee can't be truly delicious unless it's richly creamed. . . . Now, don't begin to talk about expensive bottled cream does cost a lot—but there's another way—a highly economical way—to get creamy richness into your steaming morning cup, or into your tall, frosty glass of iced coffee at dinner time.

Coffee hot or coffee cold—cream it and sugar it with Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk—it isn't just plain "foamed milk"—far from it! It's a delicious blend of pure, fresh, full-cream country milk and finest sugar. Creamy rich! More than twice as rich as ordinary milk, because most of the water has been taken out. Bottled milk, you know, is 87% water.

Standard Milk will give you true cream and sugar deliciousness at one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar! Use it!

This way for Hot Coffee:

Put one or two teaspoonsful of Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk into the empty coffee cup. Then pour in the hot coffee. Note the rich, heavy body—the perfect golden color—the mellow flavor! Your coffee will be creamed and sugared to perfection.

And this way for Iced Coffee: Make the coffee by your favorite method, using six heaping tablespoons of coffee to two cups of water. Strain the coffee and add three-fourths cup of Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk. Chill and serve.

Get this extra goodness into your cooling, too! Use Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk in any recipe that calls for both milk and sugar. Get it from your grocer today! Remember—it stays fresh for days after the can is opened, even without seal.

HUNT PRINCESS IN ELOPEMENT

most of Europe's matchmakers. Before her recent visit to America, she was reported engaged to Prince Humbert of Italy, the Prince of Wales and other royal personages.

Then during her visit with her royal mother Queen Marie to the United States a business deal was made by Dr. P. K. Kitch, a student at Colver Military Academy, who was in the making, as a result of an act of chivalry in which he administered first aid to a daily spreader.

An autographed picture of Princess Helena and a note of thanks seem to have been the limit of the romance with the handsome young American. After being Frenchified, she visited West Point Military Academy, her name was linked with that of Cadet William J. Glasgow of Virginia.

At that time her mother, Queen Marie, was in the United States.

EVA GALLIENNE WINS ART PRIZE

New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The 14-year-old daughter of a French diplomat and organizer of the 1927 American Women's Art Show, received the $500 award given annually by the National Academy of Design to the artist, letter, or social worker.

Miss Eva Gallienne is a daughter of the late Le Gallienne, poet.

Marie declared she had no objection to her daughter marrying an American, but from the artist's standpoint, Queen Marie seems to have little to say in regard to the Princess's affairs of the heart.

Her father, Romaine, Oct. 14 (A.P.) Reports from Vienna of the elopement of Princess Marie, daughter of the late Queen Marie, with a naval cadet, the Countess of Montenegro, was semi-officially disavowed by the Austrian government.

'DARLING' AS LURE WINS HUBBY-CALLING TITLE

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The love-making championship of the world may still be in dispute, but the world today knows who the champion husband-caller is.

Now, meet Mrs. L. C. Lallier of Carrollton, Va., unanimously acclaimed by three judges, all second married men, to be the most adept mate-summoner of them all.

She won her title at the Suffolk, Va., fair and today the judges are watching her as she passes her latest half-way record and triumphant victory.

That's the call that did it. And in her room the judges agreed, was that appealing tone that would cause a man to give up his chaperone at the party gates.

It was a close race for Mrs. Lallier, though. She had to out-evince a rival of a friend, Mrs. J. M. Montgomery of Norfolk, who finished second, and Mrs. Hall Place, third.

CAPTAIN DIEHL DEFENDED BY OLD MARINER

"For what he did for me for my sinking ship I can bear to testify to the good character of Captain John Diehl," declared Benjamin T. Hagerman, retired master mariner of Chicago, defense counsel for Diehl in his trial in Federal court today on indictments arising out of the loss of the ship and her crew of 27 men off Block Island December 25, 1925, after collision with the City of Rome of which Diehl was captain.

Hagerman told the jury he came voluntarily from Chicago to say a good word for Diehl when he read the account of his trial in the press. "I have been 40 years at sea," the retired mariner declared, and until the time of my retirement in 1922 Captain Diehl always had a good reputation as a sailor.

DIEHL KIND TO HIM.
"I have in mind the kind not be once performed for me and my crew on a sinking ship in dangerous waters," Frank Lucree of Savannah, Ga., number of the engine room crew on the City of Rome at the night of the fatal crash, who testified in direct examination yesterday concerning efforts of Captain Diehl to make him change his testimony, was the first witness on the stand today when court convened.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Hagerman, Lucree admitted the charges made against Diehl were not disclosed by him until after the death of Captain Diehl, a companion of Diehl, when the alleged request was made.

WITNESS CAN'T REMEMBER.
He was questioned about testimony he had given before a naval board of inquiry and before a board of steamship inspectors with regard to having heard warning signals from the City of Rome at the time of the collision.

Alleged discrepancies between testimony on those occasions and that given by him yesterday, Lucree did not remember, nor was he able to identify a log-book of bells which Hagerman said he had previously identified.

Lucree denied he had been ordered to repeat the watchlight on the City of Rome, but admitted he did not report its having been out of order, although having knowledge of it.

ONE HOUR IN CABINET COSTS 5 DAYS IN JAIL.
New York, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The first sentence under the curfew law which requires children to close at 8 p. m. was imposed today upon Frank Kalonias, proprietor of an eighth avenue cabaret, who was given five days in the workhouse.

He allowed his place to remain open an hour beyond the prescribed limit. Justice Salomon declared the law would be strictly enforced.

'BRICK' THUGS LOOT STORE

"Paving brick" thugs returned to the scene today and looted a South End clothing store of garments valued at several hundred dollars, using a stolen automobile on the trip, after failing to rob an innkeeper there because of their discovery by a passing civilian.

Three men were involved in the break. The trio first made their presence in town known when they stole an automobile owned by William J. Denney of Summer street, Lynn, which had been parked in City Hall square.

Shortly afterward they were caught fumbling around a rock on a door of the Goodover Clothing Company on Washington street, a short distance away. A newspaper trips driver, who passed to watch them receive a stiff punch on the jaw as the trio scrambled for their stolen automobile. His name was not disclosed by the police.

While an alarm was being broadcast for their apprehension, the men smashed a window of the H. Mahon Clothing Company store on Washington street, South End, and escaped with a considerable amount of men's and women's clothing.

RESCUERS GET OUT IN FIRE AT REVERE

Nine persons, including five children, were carried down ladders from a third-story piazza, where they had been trapped today when a fire of mysterious origin swept the street and apartment house back at 103-107 Endicott avenue, Revere, section of Revere, and which for a time looked so serious that help was called from Chelsea.

Two alarms were sounded and scores of families in the thickly settled section were preparing to move when the department succeeded in setting the blaze under control.

Awakened by smoke, Benjamin Lewis, his wife and three children, living on the second floor, attempted to flee to the street, but found that their escape had been cut off. Their cries aroused Simon Leck, his wife and two small children.

Both families fled to the third floor where they took refuge on the piazza, until carried down ladders by firemen. They were later given shelter by neighbors.

The blaze was discovered by a passerby, who pulled in the alarm. At that time the store on the street floor appeared to be all ablaze and the flames breaking through the wall of the hallway leading to the apartments on the upper floor.

With the arrival of the first apparatus, a second alarm was rung, bringing help from Chelsea. Fanned by a brisk morning wind, sparks from the burning structure were soon showering nearby dwellings, causing the occupants of the street to grab a few personal belongings and flee to the street.

The first of the trapped occupants to be brought down the ladders from the third-story piazza were the children of the two Lewis families, the adults being assisted in the descent to the street.

VATICAN ORGAN TELLS POPE MUST HAVE 'REAL' TERRITORY

Rome, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Catholic Romanos, official Vatican organ, answering an article published by Arnaldo Mussolini, brother of the Premier, in the Popolo Italia, reiterated its stand today yesterday that support of the "Roman question" hinges upon the restoration of some of Italy's territorial rights.

"There is absolutely necessity from a religious viewpoint that the Pope should have liberty and independence, not only real and perfect but also visible in the faithful throughout the world."

SINGER HELD ON NEWTON GIRL'S CHARGE

CLAIMS HE IS FATHER OF CHILD

Collapse of a Boston University School of Religious Education romance was revealed today, when dispatches from New York told of the arrest of Oliver Sovereign, 21, socialist in a fashionable Fifth avenue church.

The arrest was made on complaint of Miss Thelma Louise Bishop, former director of religious education at a Newton church, now said to be connected with a social union in Boston, who charged Sovereign with the father of her child.

The young man, who lived in Newton ten up to a short time ago, and whose home is in Joplin, Mo., is held in $100 bail which he is unable to furnish, being forced to stay in a meagre church infirmary by waiting wives in a restaurant.

INTERESTED IN YOUTH.

Miss Bishop, who is known as Mrs. Oliver Sovereign, makes her home in Pellam street, Newton Centre. The lady is said to be boarded out. The young woman could not be found by reporters today.

From what could be learned, however, Miss Bishop was graduated from the School of Religious Education at Boston University in 1924 and was appointed director of religious education at Trinity Episcopal Church, Newton.

SOME TWO YEARS AGO young Sovereign came to Newton, and also enrolled in the School of Religious Education as a special student. A few students was a girl from his home town, who is said to have been a resident of Newton. This girl introduced him to Miss Bishop, said to have been a few years older than the youth from Missouri.

SHE PAYS FOR TRAINING.

Development had a voice, with as dissonant toward as operatic career, but was absolutely devoted of devotion according to friends of the couple.

Miss Bishop became much interested in him and in the New England Conservatory of Music.

In the meantime Sovereign had taken a room in Newton Centre and moved to Face 23, Column 3.

Ford Plans Many Mill Schools for U. S. Boys

Suffolk, Oct. 13.—Plans for a carding mill in which poor boys and orphans will be taught textile trades were described in glowing terms by Henry Ford at whose Wayside Inn estate the mill will be constructed soon.

"The mill will form part of an educational centre of which the Mary's Little Lamb School for small children, which I started last year, is the foundation," said the magnate, who he stroled across his broad acres.

"What more the centre will consist of I have not yet decided in my own mind."

"The mill will give employment to about 20 boys who will be taken from homes in this vicinity. I plan especially to help orphans who are robbed of a chance of learning a good trade by the accident of circumstances over which they have no control."

"They will all be housed, fed and taught on the estate, their dormitory and general living quarters being in the big old house on the Plymouth estate which I am now remodeling."

"Each boy will be carefully watched and taught industriously as far as possible, and exceptional ability will be noted, so that the brightest boys will get their chance for a successful future, while the less bright ones will be drilled so that they can at least battle life on even terms."

"This will not be the only place where this plan will be put into effect, for I hope to establish similar training places in several cities, but in all likelihood the project will first be put into operation here."

"The major idea, of course, is education. All these historic things here, the old domestic implements and furnishings, the great mill of days gone by and the other articles that attract so many persons here week in and week out are part of the same general plan."

"Eventually this place will be a great park, open to the public, with pleasure grounds for all visitors in nature and in the things of the past that the machinery age has nearly obliterated."

"Candidates should observe the letter and the spirit of the Eighteenth Amendment which they are called upon to enforce," declared Mrs. Wages. "Political cantinae declare in no uncertain language their opposition to the tariff, international relations and farm relief. It is time they declare their policy on prohibition and its enforcement," she said.

"W. C. T. U. is all parties," she continued. "Along with educational campaigns to promote law observance it will have a campaign of denunciation and election of officials who are friends of prohibition and propose to use the ballot to kill direct liquor traffic."

More than 200 delegates had arrived up to noon today.

Tonight's program will include addresses by Mrs. Nellie Barker, national assistant recording secretary, and Zim John C. Mull, speaker of the House of Representatives.

MEXICO TROOPS KILL 83 REBELS

Mexico City, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Fifty rebels were killed, Guadalajara dispatches say, when aeroplanes, co-operating with the small Federal garrison at Tlaxiaco, El Alto, defeated insurgents commanded by the so-called Generals Antonio Plutarco, Leon Sanchez and Ignacio Sanchez Guzman, who attacked the town.

These rebels are not connected with the recent military uprisings under Generals Berrozo and Gomez. It is stated, Near Huasteco, in the State of Vera Cruz, a rebel captain named Viteras, supposed to have supported Gomez, and thirteen of his followers were killed by militia.

Considerable all danger from the military uprising past, the authorities have cancelled the order to keep the troops confined in barracks.

The Senate has adopted the bill extending the President's term of office from four to six years.

The measure now goes to the Chamber of Deputies and if passed there must be ratified by a majority of the State Legislatures.

Another Mexican newspaperman has been deported in the government's campaign to stamp out opposition. Victoriano Salazar Alvarez, editorial staff writer for the Expositor, was placed on a train for the United States, accompanied by an agent of the Department of Interior. This follows deportation of Felix F. Palacios, lawyer and former editor of El Universal, and Luis Figueroa, chief editorial writer for Expositor.

SACCO ASHES REACH TURIN FOR BURIAL

Turin, Italy, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—Two urns containing ashes of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, anarchists executed in the United States for murder, arrived here by train today and were forwarded to Villa Fieschi, where it is expected burial will be made. It was unknown what day the ashes would arrive on, and official care was taken that no demonstrations be held. There will be no public funeral ceremony.

St. Louis, Oct. 14 (A.P.)—The Anti-Saloon League of Missouri has launched a campaign to obtain ratification of the State against the candidacy of Governor Al Smith, Senator James Reed and any other presidential candidate of similar attitude toward prohibition carrying the State.

The drive will be known as the "Warfare B. Wheeler memorial campaign."

Bite yourself an Alphabet

"Mr. Pretzeleer is busy in conference"

Very, very high pressure executives make it a rule to pretend at least once every afternoon. They find that biting out letters saves their 90 H.P. brains. Try it. Lock the doors. Send out word you're in conference and start biting. A good word to bite is because it helps make you believe you are—busy, at least, being a pretzeleer.

It was a pretzeleer who invented the word toothsome. He was thinking of the fine heavy salty flavor that comes from with every O-So-Gud. And the crispness and brittleness. To say nothing of the crunchiness.

The more you pretend with O-So-Guds the better you like it. Pretzel before going to bed. With soup, salad, dessert. When you drink ginger ale. If the youngsters will eat between meals there's nothing better than a knobby but nice pretzel. And you don't have to worry about digesting them. That's why Unceada Bakers pretend, of course. We call them O-So-Guds because they are.

O-SO-GUD PRETZELS

Bite your letter out of great, great, great O-So-Guds. You eat everything except the open spaces.

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING

Most of the world's best known have been heightened and embellished by exaggeration.

A good job cannot be too funny. Not exaggerating in advertising, whether in the printed description or in the illustration, is intolerable. It is a downright dishonesty.

Every advertisement is worded with extreme care, to say just what it means, and to avoid confusion or exaggeration.

Flood of Foreign Bonds; Are Bankers Conservative?

By E. C. FORBES
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Instead of being an Uncle Rhyck, Uncle Sam is rather a Santa Claus in Europe. Apparently there is no limit to the amount of money America is willing to loan to other countries.

A fresh state of foreign borrowing is under way. We have already granted foreign loans for the year, and it looks as if the 1927 total will approach a billion and a half.

The New York Stock Exchange is a conservative to a degree. It has not yet unlimited amount of money to loan to other countries, but it is becoming more and more conservative in its attitude.

On one day this week, Wednesday, the newspapers announced four big new foreign offerings: $100,000,000 of Polish bonds, $100,000,000 of German bonds, $100,000,000 of French bonds, and $100,000,000 of Italian bonds.

These four offerings, totaling $400,000,000, are a record for any one day. They are a testament to the confidence of the world in America.

It is a natural, indeed, inevitable, that the United States, having become a creditor nation and enjoying an export balance averaging half a billion dollars a year, should naturally be a lender of money to other countries.

Football Free-for-All
Over-Emphasis Did It
Little Teams on Top
Game Will Profit

By NICK FLATLEY

BOYS WILL YELL ABOUT SCORE OVEREMPHASIS

PLENTY of eggs have been scrambled in the early weeks of the football dish, but a real omelette is likely to be served after the boys are through running and kicking and fumbling tomorrow.

College football has now resolved itself into a glorious free-for-all. The big universities and colleges, the crowds that "hid the front over twenty years of strife, are now on the same level, athletically, with the little institutions, where sport used to be a joke.

The colleges that have been out in the calcium over the years are now bound down by eligibility rules, and scholastic demands and similar things. The drive against proselytizing hit only the great colleges. The rest were too insignificant to be regarded.

Result, the small centers of knowledge have stepped into the picture. They have hired expensive coaches, and, what we hear, have been importing athletes. Nothing to stop them.

Any husky kid would naturally prefer a sure place in the line or backfield, without having to bother too much with books, to an opportunity to pass a million exams, and then fight it out for a possible letter.

There are a thousand spots now where a high or prep school star athlete may tricker, with no questions asked. He cannot jump into Harvard or Yale; Princeton or Dartmouth; B. C. or Holy Cross; and so on and so on, just because he won the Thanksgiving game a year ago and kicked thirteen straight field goals.

But he can go to Whershis and Comeon on just those terms. So he does. Then when he marches along with his team to battle some great, but overly examined big college, he has the pep and the fire to carry through an afternoon: to take rocks and hand them back and get a real kick from the procedure.

They started it, so they have themselves to blame. The fan looks on, laughs, and gives three or four loud cheers. He has plenty of fun. He knows that football supports plenty of colleges in each State and never can be squashed. So why should he fret? Why should anybody?

SINK COLLEGES THINK THAT ELIGIBILITY DEPENDS ON WEIGHT

He makes an application

He doesn't need to know a thing
If only he can pass.

WE HAVE WITH US YEAR'S BIG DAY FOR UPSETS
A part from the moral and scholastic side of our jumbled football, tomorrow should be one of the season's best days. There are more chances for upsets than you will find in a roller skating race for amateurs.

Harvard meets a Holy Cross team that is being hoisted as the best that ever comes up from Worcester. The Brown from Men tackle Yale, just beaten by Georgia. Dartmouth entertains Temple, an unknown that has the green real worried. It has been rumored that the abolition of athletic scholarships at Penn State sent a lot of good performers to Temple.

Notre Dame, faded warriors of the West, meet the Navy for the first time. Frank Yvanough's Fordham crowd cracks on Clark Mechan's supposedly invincible N. Y. U. defense. Georgetown and Syracuse, two of the country's high scorers, collide.

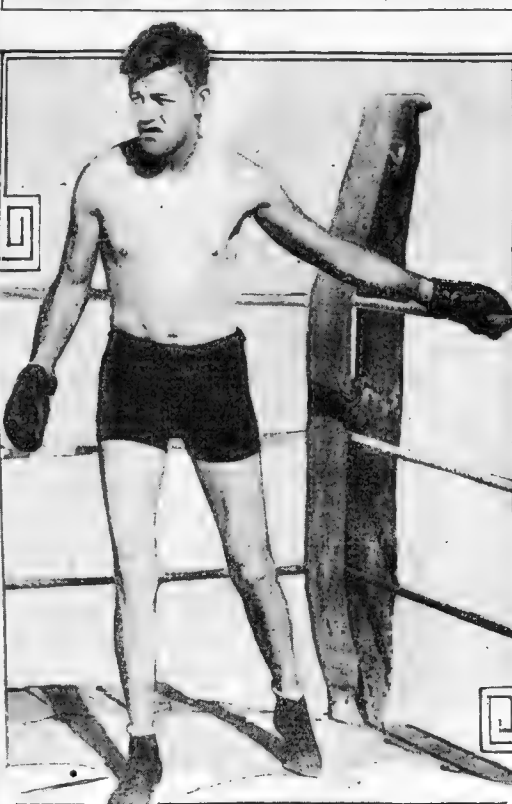

STOWELL'S
CLARK LIGHTER

The banished terror
of three on one match

Are you superstitious? Whether you are or not there is no need to dare the invisible and probably unreal danger of being the third-one match. Use a Clark Lighter yourself. If a match-user pulls out his antiquated firemaker, flick your Clark into flame. Watch the somewhat apologetic manner in which he will put away his matches. A Clark Lighter is a fine-watch-like article, sure in operation, clean and safe. You may buy them in silver, gold-plated or gold, plain or engraved; covered with husky pignons or other genuine leather; encased in mother-of-pearl and other specialties.

The prices range from $7.50 to $200

HONEYBOY AWAITING THE BELL

THE PRIDE OF FIELDS CORNER, DORCHESTER
Dick Finnegan, who many believe will be the lightweight champion in a few months, has a tough hurdle to negotiate tonight at Mechanics Building when he meets that Orient Heights Wildcat from East Boston. The bout tonight shapes up as one of the most attractive of the year.

YALE GRID FANS URGED TO USE
TRAINS

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 14.—Robbins B. Stowell, Connecticut Highway Commissioner, today advised persons planning to attend the Yale football game this Fall to come to New Haven by train. The flood of automobiles which descended upon the Connecticut turnpike cause acute congestion, and it is to relieve this condition that the outside police is urged to come by train.

He also announced two auto routes for Massachusetts parties. One runs through Hartford and North Haven. Plans have been made to split this traffic at North Haven, one side running into New Haven through State and Driscoll avenues, the other entering through Middletown avenue.

The second route runs along the shore line through Stamford and East Haven into New Haven over the new Tomlinson bridge. Both roads are in good condition, although reconstruction of the Bradford Hill turnpike is not completed.

Follow the Big Games in the Football Extra

The Boston Evening American will carry a full three-page account of the three big football games tomorrow afternoon—Harvard vs. Holy Cross, Yale vs. Brown and Dartmouth vs. Temple.

A special football edition will be on the street with the complete accounts of the Harvard-Holy Cross game as soon as the contest is over. The scores of all the games in the country up to the time the football extra goes to press will also appear.

Sports Directors Boost City Stadium Campaign

By JOE CASHMAN

The directors of athletics in the Boston schools, Nathaniel J. Young, head of the department of physical education and his assistants, Fred J. O'Brien and James H. Crowley, all heartily endorse the Boston Evening American's campaign for a municipal stadium.

All three believe that such a field is needed badly and admit that they would be overjoyed to see a place in the heart of the city where the school athletes could practice and hold games.

Nathaniel Nichols has said that $100,000 would be a good price for a lot of land in the heart of the city. He has said that the city should be able to get a lot of land for a lot of money.

FINNEGAN FAVORITE IN BOUT

Honeyboy Choice Over Jimmy Sacco in Mechanics Building Mill Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

HONEYBOY FINNEGAN and Jimmy Sacco will swing into action in a ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A. show at Mechanics Building tonight. It is what the dear old promoters term a "natural." It brings together a couple of classy local boys, each of whom has a large following, and as a result the show should play to a capacity crowd.

Finnegan is a favorite and should win. He'll be strong at the weight, which is 125 pounds. Honeyboy will enter the ring several rounds before the match.

HARVARD TAKES TO THE AIR

Coach Horven Will Try to Match Holy Cross' Passing Skill in Tomorrow's Game

A barrage of aerial passes will feature the Harvard offense tomorrow in its game against the Holy Cross Crusaders. With all other types of ground-gaining attack failing to bring fruitful results, Coach Arnold Horven has taken to the overhead game as a last resort to break the winning streak of the Crusaders over his Crimson charges.

Horven is also "in the air" with his own team. He has been "in the air" for some time, and he is now "in the air" again. He is now "in the air" again.

Harvard Fans Might Turn Purple If Holy Cross Wins Saturday

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Navy-Notre Dame Game Tops Saturday's Slate

With the Navy-Notre Dame game as the headliner, a fine array of football contests will be offered tomorrow.

Although the Army-Notre Dame set is an annual classic, this will be the first time Knute Rockne's charges have met the Midshipmen, and Baltimore, where the battle will be staged, will be honored by its largest gathering of football fans.

Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth fans will be disappointed to learn that the Crimson will not play the Navy-Notre Dame game tomorrow.

The team Coach Tom McLaughlin sends to battle tomorrow will be a different thing altogether from the one that won the championship of the Ivy League last year.

Although a bitter pill for the "Iron Men" to swallow, the reverse suffered in the championship should be the making of Harvard. Yale must need play a better brand of football than it did against Georgia or the blue will have another black mark chalked up against it.

Yale is getting a real football team in Washington and Lee and the Tigers must be in the front line to play against the undefeated

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"I HAVE discovered why Harvard athletes are making a survey of the hit and run luncheon in Cambridge," said Mr. Boston today. "This is even a greater tragedy than attempting to make our laude students remember football games."

"I interviewed a Crimson athlete whom I found hanging away at some place knowned at one of those 'hit and run' luncheons. He was much depressed in spirits."

"I asked him to open his mouth and I thought it might be a surprise from the fact that he was so depressed. He was so depressed in spirits."

ICE

does a perfect job of Refrigeration

THE merit of ice lies in its ideal balance of atmospheric conditions. It climes the air in a refrigerator to circulate. It keeps the air cold enough and not too cold; dry enough and not too dry. It keeps the air moist enough to keep food at its best.

All that is necessary is to keep the ice chamber properly filled. More and more housewives are doing this all the time—winter as well as summer. They know it pays. There is no refrigeration like ice. It is the ideal and natural way of preserving food and food flavor.

Recipes for Lima Beans

By MARTHA LEE.

HAVE you noticed the increasing popularity of California lima beans? And no wonder for they are so easy to prepare. And they are so easy to prepare. And they are so easy to prepare.

A lima bean loaf with an onion or vegetable salad makes up a fine and perfect meal. And they are so easy to prepare. And they are so easy to prepare.

If you do this at breakfast, at your usual hour for preparing dinner you will find them easy to prepare. And they are so easy to prepare.

These keep and moreover require very little pantry space. So if you are a busy housewife, you will find them a most convenient and delicious addition to your table.

First, just a few words on how to select the best lima beans. To select the best lima beans, you should look for beans that are uniform in size and color. They should be free from any signs of mold or decay.

Lima in Tomato Sauce.—Two cups lima beans, one cup tomato sauce, one cup onion, one cup celery, one cup carrot, one cup tomato, one cup onion, one cup celery, one cup carrot, one cup tomato.

Sauté.—One cup lima beans, one cup onion, one cup celery, one cup carrot, one cup tomato, one cup onion, one cup celery, one cup carrot, one cup tomato.

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

There seems to be no limit to Edison's genius. All of everywhere we turn we find evidence of his remarkable versatility. He is honored for his scientific achievements, for his perfecting of the light, the phonograph and motion picture, but his most of our readers know that he originated "waxed paper."

A Novel Monument
Fulfilling the last will of the founder of the first newspaper in Tomsk, Siberia, authorities have erected over his grave a novel monument. It is a railroad rail with an electric bulb at the top, with the slogan, "Push ahead toward light."

Edison was even "mixed up" in flying. In 1885 James Gordon Bennett, the famous publisher, gave him $1000 to make experiments. He built a helicopter, a machine that rises straight into the air instead of first running along the ground like an airplane. But Edison's helicopter never flew. It wasn't light enough.

Whether working on the most complicated or the simplest problem, Edison is always "at home." One day he might be planning an electrical system, the next day the simplest laboratory device. One day he might be planning an electrical system, the next day the simplest laboratory device.

Infectious Diseases in the Boarding Schools

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M.D.

THE opening of the school year gives special importance to methods of preventing the introduction of infectious diseases into boarding schools.

The present isolation, quarantine of a child with an infectious disease with prompt notification of health authorities, is recognized as a first principle in preventing the spread of the malady, whether in or out of school.

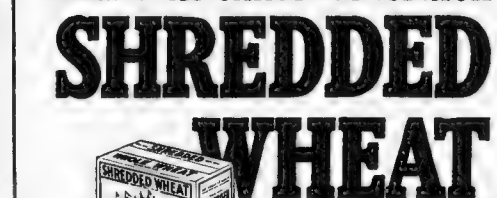

Many (fancied) justly observe that, in England, as in America, complaint is occasionally made against boards of boarding house schools that, while they insist that the parents shall notify and examine their pupils exposed to infection at home, they do not recognize similar obligations to the parents.

That in that they are not careful enough to notify parents that their sons have been exposed to infection at school, or if they do they do not use form sufficient data to enable them to quarantine their sons after their arrival.

On the first hand it is true that

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MCDERMID.
BARNUM once declared there was a sucker born every minute;
but since then the night clubs have gained an audience and increased the birth rate.

THAT you can find a monkey in anybody's family tree.

ONCE man referred to a barbat as a cleaning establishment. They take five and ten spots out of his pocket.

He nicknamed it the Broadway Retail Company.

THEY deal in hollyhocks and he was one of their all-night suckers.

HE says they had a couple of businesses there who could get maple syrup out of a wooden leg.

He finally went back to Chicago where the hollup nose rob you by the neck and carried away.

THAT thugs don't make you pay a worse charge and they never put any poison in their black-picks.

NOt only that, but when a halfway man takes all your money, he doesn't expect you to use him or his.

He sucks you up and everything is included.

NEW YORK now has a clowning law. They won't let the night clubs rob you after three o'clock in the morning.

THAT silly nobody has anything to say at that time.

BUT if you would have some taxicab driver will take you to the way home.

If a mean walk-out of a barbat with a quarter in his pocket, the proprietor fires the hostess for being negligent.

On fellow was robbed so fast the other fellows didn't have time to nickel-tail to telephone for the police.

THEAT took his entire week's salary, but he didn't care. He was a married man and would have lost it anyhow.

He figured it was better to give them a night club than to spend it foolishly.

He filled his pockets with nickels, dimes and quarters to cheat the gold-diggers, but a couple of blinded silverheels took it away from him.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately.

3. By after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
4. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Force, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.

5. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish literacy among the people of the United States and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
6. Necessary measure to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

The Mayor's Civic Centre

Heard His Plan

Mayor Nichols, home from a hurried and altogether expensive visit to Cleveland, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul, speaks of a new Civic Centre—Cathedral, City Hall and Auditorium—and before he is ready to place his plans before the people is branded "visionary."

It seems to us we recall hearing John Fitzgerald stigmatized as wild and Quixotic because of his advocacy of playgrounds, municipal centres, public baths and the like, as well as his advance-agency of a "Better, Bigger and Buiser Boston."

And James M. Curley looked upon as past all hope because of what HE was going to do—and did—with Tremont, Court and Cambridge streets.

It might be well to wait and learn exactly what Mr. Nichols has in mind. HE reminds us that the present City Hall and City Hall Annex are "near the heart of the high-priced downtown retail area," the inference being that these sites would bring a pot of money to be applied to the Civic Centre scheme.

The Mayor journeyed to the Middle West to see some of its municipal auditoriums. He found one in every city except Chicago, where a bond issue of $10,000,000 is about to be made for the construction of the "world's greatest."

He returns to be informed that two groups of citizens are engaged in pushing plans for privately-owned auditoriums. In connection with one he hears the name of Mr. "Tex" Rickard.

Mr. Nichols peered, peevish, cross or crusty because someone is cutting in on him, "stealing his stuff?" By no means; what he wants, what Boston needs, is an auditorium. His proposed Civic Centre is something else. It appears to be certain, therefore, that we ARE to have an auditorium. It remains to be determined whether we shall also have a Civic Centre section of her home town have been favored at the expense of others. She would give all sections a square deal. But reduce the tax rate? Well!

Mayor "Gwen"

Why Not?

If some of the women who have been most active in the public affairs of New Hampshire do not rally around the first woman to be nominated for the mayoralty of a Granite State city we shall be much surprised.

Having survived the primary, an elimination contest, Helen Gwendolyn Jones will now meet Mayor Fred N. Marden in the November election. It may be significant that in the four-cornered primary contest His Honor failed of a majority by 74 votes. If his opponents could centre upon the "Jones girl" she will be Concord's next Mayor.

It seems to us that the Capital City might do worse. Miss Jones has at least indicated the possession of the right stuff. She has refrained from attempting to blame her way into office. She believes some sections of her home town have been favored at the expense of others. She would give all sections a square deal. But reduce the tax rate? Well!

"Anyone who tells you Concord's general taxes can be reduced is a liar. All we can hope for is to keep them from mounting higher and higher. One tax may be reduced but another will be raised and the reduction more than offset. Your one solution is to elect persons who will give a sound businesslike administration."

Fred Marden, former policeman, is too seasoned a campaigner to look upon Concord as a "joke" candidacy. Anyone who regards this young woman as a joke candidate is likely to discover the laugh turned in his direction. "Gwen" was graduated from Concord's high school at the age of 17. She was 24, last June, when she received the diploma of the university at Durham. What details? She went into employment for three years. At the age of 21 she went into employment for three years. At the age of 21 she went into employment for three years.

It is certain there will be women mayors in New England and the plunge may just as well be made now as later. They have seen the light in England, where at last steps are being taken to place the sexes on an absolute equality and extend the vote to women of 21 and over.

There is nothing more interesting on New England's political program at the moment than this campaign in Concord. Watch it.

Why Men Like Miracles

To Be Amazed Delights Them

A reverend gentleman says miracles are never "a violation of nature's laws." That is true, since a clergyman says it, but the ordinary mortal is interested in miracles chiefly because he thinks they DO violate nature's laws.

A Hindu likes to see his religious fakir throw a rope up into the air with nothing to support it, then climb up the rope and vanish from sight.

Millions delight in the story of Joshua stopping the sun in its journey around the earth that he might win his fight. Some still think he did stop the sun, in spite of the generally accepted theory that the sun doesn't go around the earth.

Genius

Has Its Share of Hazards

They say raising chickens is a hazardous occupation. Raising songbirds is a close runner-up.

A New Rochelle woman invested $2,100 in a musical education for a grand opera baritone and then he refused to work and pay his board.

The court declined to let in the matter, for it seems that one educationist put down as one's own risk. The lady could have saved considerable money by having a canary.

The "May Go" Is Still Grounded

JERDANOWITCH AND AN ARTISTIC HOAX

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE career of Pavel Jerdanowitch is instructive. His paintings have been exhibited in Chicago and New York and have been favorably commented upon by many of the art journals of America and France. The French journal, the Review of the True and the Beautiful, asked for the artist's interpretation of his pictures and also for his autobiography. It published a reproduction of one of his paintings, saying, among other things: "This artist has a distinctly individual manner in representing people and objects, and uses the brush to symbolize the sentiments. Pavel Jerdanowitch is not satisfied to follow ordinary paths. His spirit delights in intoxication, and he is a prey to the aesthetic agonies which are not experienced without suffering."

The artist in question grew a beard, wrinkled up his forehead, and looking very Russian, applied his photograph, also his autobiography. He said he was born in Moscow and came to America ten years ago. He claimed his picture represented the breaking of shackles of womanhood. Women were prohibited from eating bananas on her native island. The woman in the picture had just taken a luscious bite and was waving the banana skin in triumphant new freedom!

As a matter of fact it was all a hoax. Pavel Jerdanowitch is none other than Paul Jordan Smith, an author, who doesn't know anything about paintings and doesn't claim to.

His wife is somewhat of an artist, Sarah Bibby Smith. Just for fun he painted a picture of a woman eating a banana and her mouth filled with the luscious fruit. Triumphant she waved the skin in her hand. A skull lurked in the background.

An artist visiting him took Paul Jordan Smith's picture for a Gauguin. Smith suggested that he couldn't see much in it himself but a crude daub. "Oh, but you can't see into the artist's soul," replied the other. "There is probably a great thought behind it."

So Paul Jordan Smith sent his picture to the Waldorf Astoria for an exhibition in the Spring of 1925 and ascribed it to Pavel Jerdanowitch, a name he had made up. He called his masterpiece, "Exultation." The critics fell over themselves to praise his work and art reviews spoke highly of it. All of which goes to show that some high brow talk is purely bunk.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALICE MICHAELIS.

IF you tend a bit of brightness as some passing joy you cheerly happy hearts will hold you closely in their memories, here and there, if you were a threat of another in the future of their days, though the effort cost but little, you will reap men's love and praise; you will flash a touch of gladness on the day

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELISIE ROBINSON

LYN's pretty letter about life. I think it's all unfair. Yesterday another fellow in the office was promoted over Lyn—a chap who has only been with the firm for three years. "Nothing but a hot air artist," sneers Lyn. "Yes, I admit he has some pretty bright ideas. But you ought to see the way he's loaded on his job. Has an awful temper, too. Actually stood up to the Old Man one day and refused to carry out his orders. You'd think a fellow like that would be canned right off, wouldn't you? But he wasn't. Everybody seemed to fall for his line. And so Lyn has the promotion I've been working for. That's all the thanks a fellow gets for eight years' drudgery—being a regular hand."

All the thanks a fellow gets—You've said that too, haven't you, friend, as you have seen the race go to the swift and "the battle to the strong" while some patient plodder was forgotten? And it seemed terribly unjust. Seemed as if "some fellow had all the breaks, without half working for them."

But they did work for them. They earned that reward for actual service rendered. We humans like strength and audacity and confidence. We demand these qualities with a fierce intensity. When we see another person display them we not only admire the display, but we feel that we have taken part in that display. We identify ourselves with that brave, bold work. We feel that he is expressing what we would express if we were in his position. His audacity is our audacity—his triumph, ours—dashy people than we are to those who serve us faithfully and faultlessly. For those who serve, only do things FOR us, but the other people do things TO us. Let's be a bit truth in that for certain men and women who feel that life is handing them unjustly. MERIEL AS JOE SOMETHING—BE SOMETHING! Put yourself on record as well as your work.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Of all superstitions is not the most dangerous that of hating your neighbor for his opinion? —Voltaire.

He that will not reason is a bigot; he that cannot reason is a fool, and he that does not reason is a slave. —Drummond.

A wise fool is a worse fool than an ignorant fool. —Mollere.

Avoid argument with the verbose: power of speech is given to all; wisdom of mind is rare. —Cato.

Mistakes remembered are not faults forgotten.—Newall.

If a little knowledge is dangerous, where is the man who has as much as to be out of danger? —Molloy.

ETHICAL CONCEPTS IN SCIENCE WORLD

By Garrett P. Serviss.

NOT the following ten leading items of the "Code of Scientific Ethics," unanimously adopted, and given to the public at the Santa Fe meeting of the Southwestern Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

1. "Assume an obligation to do honest work and to impartially present the same to the public, regardless of political, economic or religious prejudice, pressure or tradition."

"Exemplify in your conduct and work a courageous regard for the whole people, and not alone some powerful and influential fraction thereof with which you are in close personal contact."

"Be it pronounced that a representative and influential body as a division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science would not make and utter statements like those without cause. But must we suppose, then, that there are men of science worthy of the counsel of that association, who need that particular advice concerning their ethical conduct?"

When is the scientific man who does not do "honest work"? Let him be pilloried. Dishonest work in science is inconceivable for it would destroy science as a coercive and enduring metal.

And where is the man of science who, in his conduct and work, has more regard for "some powerful and influential fraction," with which he happens to be in close personal contact, than for the whole people? Expose him!

There must be some reason 'tween behind statements so specific in substance though veiled in euphemism. If there is no sufficient reason for making them, they will do more harm than good. Codes of ethics are not usually the formulated and published.

Gentlemen and honest men are assumed to have imbibed their gentility and honesty from nature and early education. Ethics make no special demands upon men of science, and scientific practice call for no special kind of ethics. All the same, there must be persons wearing the cloak of science who are unscrupulous. But it would seem that their fraudulent—except of course in the case of overt acts done within the fold—should be effected by other agencies than official decrees, which outsiders and detractors might hold up as a veiled confession affecting the body of scientific men in general.

Science has now a commanding position in the public eye that every breach of aspiration attaching to the straightforwardness of anyone acting in its name should be scrupulously avowed—provided, of course, that the aspiration is known to be unqualified or imaginary.

And when anything really wrong is discovered it should be dealt with in a manner not capable of giving a handle to those who are always ready to utilize the slightest opportunity to bring an indictment against the whole world of science. Copyright, 1927, International Feature Service, Inc.
